

A TALE OF A MILKMAN.

Many of the New-York milkmen make a specialty of serving, in sealed bottles, a quality of milk superior to that which they dip out of their cans at a customer's door. Of course, they charge more for the bottled milk, and in some cases it is worth more, for there must be in this large town some honest milk dealers. There is a milkman in Harlem, however, who has excited the interest and curiosity of one or two residents of One Hundred and Twentieth Street, near Eighth Avenue. He is a dispenser of the so-called "gilt-edged" milk served in sealed bottles. He has been seen frequently to stop his wagon in a secluded spot in One Hundred and Twentieth Street, near Eighth Avenue, just before the dawn of day and there fill his bottles out of the same cans from which he serves his ordinary customers. The place in front of which he stops his wagon is a vacant city lot inclosed by a high board fence. Opposite to that is an open triangular space. The locality is well calculated to insure privacy at so early an hour as 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning. But there are always sleepless and inquisitive people abroad.

TO FIGHT THE M'KNIGHT LAW.

A number of lawyers who are interested in the effort to get the McKnight law repealed met at 111 Broadway yesterday. They considered ways and means for about an hour and then appointed committees to carry on the work. Many of those present volunteered to go to Albany and advocate the repeal before the committee that will have charge of the subject.

The movement is indorsed by Burrill, Zabrickie & Burrill, Strong & Cadwalader, Cannon & Atwater, Foster & Speir, Stickney, Spencer & Ordway, Wolff & Hodge, William H. O'Dwyer, Dannis A. Spellissy, Peckham & Tyler, Lewis L. Delafield, Sackett & Bennett, E. D. Hawkins, Tremain & Tyler, Byron L. Winters, Roe & Macklin, Whitehead, Dexter & Osborn, Frederick S. Wait, Adolph L. Sanger, ex-Judge Isaacs, and Morris & Steele.